Use and abuse
of religious language

Conference outline

Use and abuse of religious language

Different religious traditions have their own language traditions. For the purpose of dialogue this represents a challenge: familiar terms trigger false associations and mutually used terms have different meanings for different people. Other terms have been transformed by the media into slogans. And what are the consequences for dialogue when the language of another tradition is used?

A conference, which enables encounter between the three Abrahamic religions in an unusually open and direct way.

The programme includes a range of opportunities for interpersonal exchange, creative groups and lectures which throw light on the guiding theme from the three different perspectives. Encountering, experiencing and getting to know the three religions will be facilitated, for example, through celebrating worship in the different traditions. The background and liturgical elements will be explained in an understandable way.

Target group includes students and their teachers, as well as all those interested in, and actively committed to, dialogue between the three religions.

The languages used during the conference will be German and English.

Planning team:

J: Rabbi Professor Jonathan Magonet, London; Irit Burkeman, London; Judith Rosen-Berry, London. C: Stefan Hartmann, Odernheim; Matthias Börner, Wuppertal. M: Dr. Jabal Buaben, Birmingham; Sabri Wilhelm Hoffmann, Bonn; Halima Krausen, Hamburg.
